

Podcasts are a great way to open up discussions

Elmore is publishing podcasts to keep partners in the know about our latest research, speak with experts, and open up discussions about our services. Listen to our podcasts below, including conversations with the then-UK's Independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner, Elmore managers, and colleagues from NHS and social work partners.

“I am very concerned by new research from Elmore Community Services which shows that slavery may be happening in Oxford in far greater numbers than we thought.”

Anneliese Dodds, MP for Oxford East

Elmore and Modern Slavery

Elmore has published a ground-breaking report which shows that modern slavery in Oxford may be 200% higher than reports to the police.

“We know that reported modern slavery figures are the tip of the iceberg, which is why I welcome the work being done by Elmore and the other guests and contributors.”

*The Rt Hon Theresa May MP,
Prime Minister of the United Kingdom (2016-2019)*

“I welcome this work by Elmore Community Services which has sought to better understand the scale of modern slavery in Oxford City in all its forms.”

*Dame Sara Thornton DBE QPM,
Independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner (2019-2022)*

Other ways Elmore is tackling Modern Slavery

- Elmore is a Co-chair of the Oxfordshire Anti-Slavery Network.
- Working alongside services to support victims of modern slavery.
- Publishing a multi-lingual explainer on how to identify and refer potential victims
- Providing a New Beginnings service for Adult Survivors of Childhood Sexual Exploitation.
- Publishing booklets with useful knowledge about Albanian and Vietnamese populations. Please download the booklets here:

“We know there are likely to be more victims of modern slavery in Oxford than previously believed following the publication of ground-breaking new research by Elmore Community Services.”

*Matthew Barber,
Police and Crime Commissioner for the Thames Valley*

Evaluating Elmore’s Impact

Slavery is a crime which harms the vulnerable. It doesn’t belong to a distant past or a faraway country, it’s happening right here, right now. Elmore is supporting victims and survivors, helping to bring abusers to justice, and working to eliminate slavery.

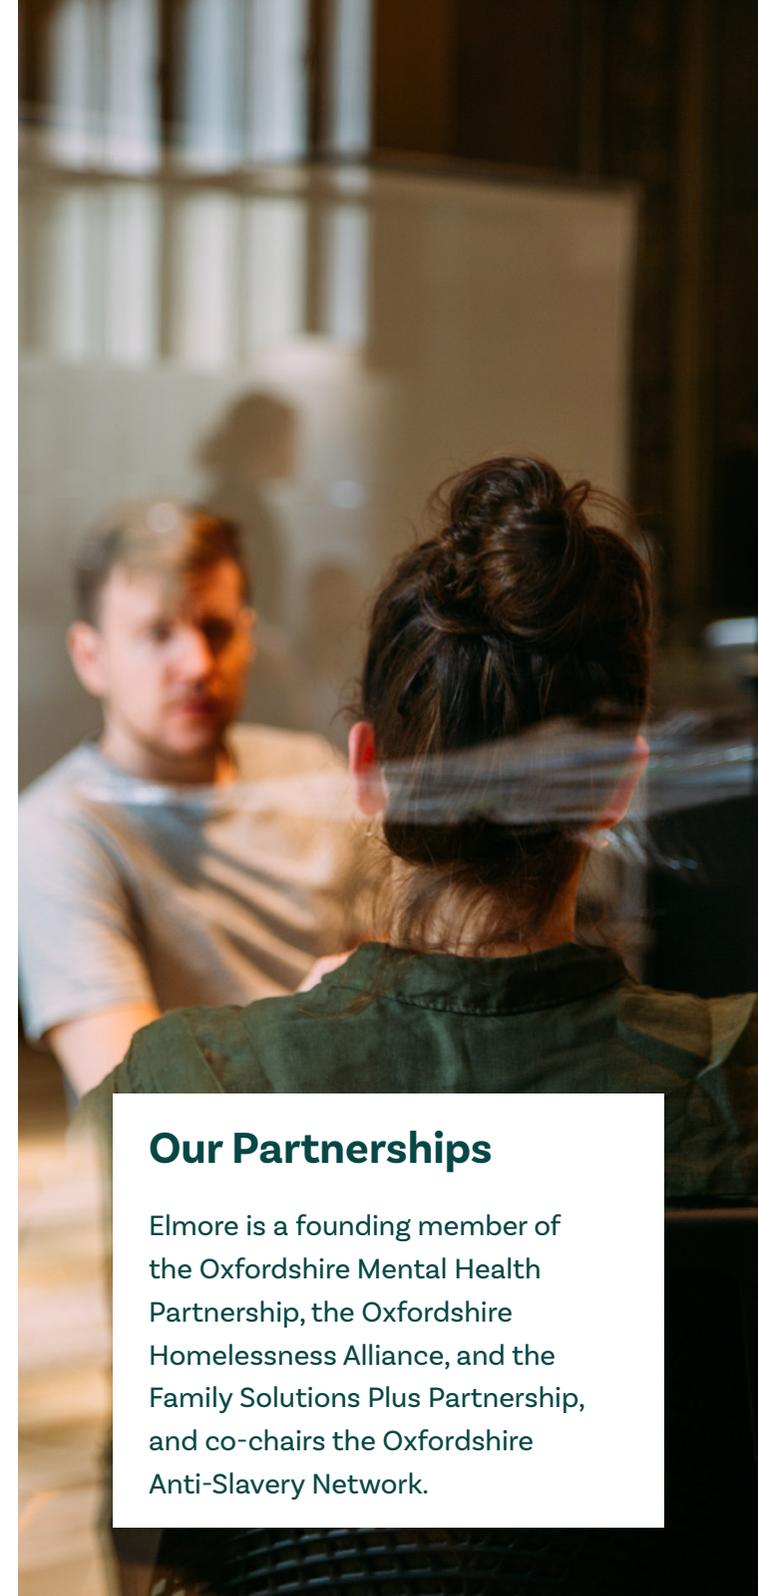

Elmore has received a positive independent evaluation of an Independent Trauma Advisory Service that we piloted for victims of modern-day slavery in Oxfordshire.
